Ellis Starr

Racing Analyst, Handicapper and Fan Educator- Lexington, Kentucky

Ubercapper@ubercapper.com

Ellis Starr, a.k.a. “Ubercapper,” has been a racing fan for many years and understands all aspects of handicapping as well as betting. More than 25 years ago, Ellis was one of the first handicappers to publish his selections on the Internet and to share his knowledge on a daily basis.

Ellis is the National Racing Analyst for Equibase, the Thoroughbred industry’s official source for Racing Information, writing a widely distributed “Race of the Week” story analyzing the top races in North America, which also appears on the web site America’s Best Racing, the Paulick Report and the Las Vegas Review-Journal.

Ellis’ handicapping and betting insights can be found via twitter @ubercapper and on the web sites of top racetracks such as Del Mar, Santa Anita, Woodbine, Ellis Park and Keeneland. Ellis also publishes articles for major races around the country as blogs and a podcast which can be found at the websites of many platforms. He also appears regularly on live streams and radio broadcasts by America’s Best Racing, Racing Across America and At the Races.

Ellis also participates in handicapping tournaments, winning the Belmont Shootout a few years back and the National Handicapping Championship Charity Challenge. He is among the few that participate annually in the Keeneland Tournament of Champions.

With a passion for fan education, when he’s not on the radio, blogging, handicapping, publishing selections or participating in handicapping tournaments, Ellis shares his passion and experience by engaging with individuals and groups, helping them become comfortable and familiar with racing and wagering while at the same time helping them to cash a few tickets.
